

Think Social Justice is funny?

Next time you hear someone using "SJW" as a pejorative... remember this

"It's long past time to take back "SJW".

The ones who use it as a pejorative are trying to make it socially unacceptable to be compassionate. They're trying to make it cool to be cruel. For the future of our people and the moral fiber of our country-- we cannot let them do that.

I once suggested, as a substitute/synonym, "Person Who Gives A Shit"— I thought that suitably salty to appeal to the "I wanna be tough, not a victim" crowd.

Because that's truly what SJWs are: people who give a shit. People who look at the situation honestly, and offer real actions to those in need— not just lip service."

Some seem to think they're being clever and funny by making jokes about those who are trying to make a difference, but don't quite get it right, or even when they DO get it right, but their cause just doesn't seem important to the "I don't give a damn" types.

They probably aren't thinking of the fact that they are enjoying lives made better, easier, fairer, and more free by thousands of Social Justice Warriors throughout decades, even centuries.

Someone may get the credit for the big changes, events that everyone has heard of, but those changes have happened because of dozens or hundreds of unknown people who refused to accept the bleak status quo they found.

The Long War for Social Justice

The final battle of the Civil Social Justice War will be in the heart, mind and spirit of the nation

<https://www.dailykos.com/stories/2018/8/19/1788651/-The-final-battle-of-the-Civil-Social-Justice-War-will-be-in-the-heart-mind-and-spirit-of-the-nation?detail=emaildkre>

Wars of violence and destruction seldom really solve a problem. Sometimes, like the Civil War, they are necessary steps when an injustice as bad as slavery couldn't be ended peacefully, but the real work is done by civilians, more or less peacefully in the streets, the courtrooms, and the polls. It takes determination and strong principles. Social Justice Warrior is a title of honor, not an insult.
